FLUSH AT YOUR OWN RISK

Beware of the Claim:
"It's Flushable"

Most items marketed as flushable actually do not degrade. Down in the sewer, these build up, clog pipes, tangle pumps and cause messy backups.

DO NOT FLUSH

- Diapers - any type
- Facial tissues, cotton balls or swabs
- Toilet scrub pads or household cleaning wipes
- Sanitary napkins, tampons, condoms or other non-organic material
- Dental floss or hair
- Fats, oils and greases
- Vitamins, medicines or other pharmaceuticals
- Napkins - paper or cloth, or paper towels
- Egg shells, nutshells and coffee grounds
- Food items containing seeds and peelings
- Cloth items
- Baby or personal hygiene wipes
- Plastic of any kind

The Town routinely cleans main sewer lines under the public streets. Property owners are fully responsible for maintaining lateral lines which connect from your homes to the main. As more blockages are caused by these so-called "flushables," you can anticipate more back-ups.

Is it preventable? What's the bottom line? Give me the straight poop!

Save your pipes – Don't flush baby wipes!
